Synopsis

That Friend is an indie bromance comedy about Paul (Harvey Guillén) — you know, that friend whose invitation for “one drink” seems harmless but inevitably leads to chaotic consequences.

When Paul crashes his best friend Henry's (Josh Brener) romantic weekend in Palm Springs with his new girlfriend Penny (Billie Lourd), what starts as an innocent visit spirals into mayhem after Paul's drug-laced cigarettes disappear into a stranger's hands.

Written and directed by the filmmaking duo Alex Wall and Will Sterling in their feature debut, this film explores the hilarious and complex dynamics of friendship, loyalty, and the chaos we create for the people we love most.

Directors' Statement

At its core, That Friend is about the person in your life who always makes things messier, louder, and more complicated than you wanted, but who you just can't seem to let go of. We've both had those people. In fact, at some point, we've both been those people.

Comedy is often rooted in chaos, but what drew us to this story was the tension beneath the laughs: what do you do when a lifelong friendship that once felt indestructible starts to feel toxic? When it starts getting in the way of the life you want for yourself? How do you separate love from obligation, nostalgia from reality? Those questions gave us a way to explore friendship, love, codependency, and emotional growth, while still letting things spiral into the kind of absurd, drug fueled, wild night level of fun that this story lives in.

We wanted the film to feel like a night out with that friend, unpredictable, hilarious, exhausting, and ultimately revealing of a truth that is almost impossible to acknowledge. The goal wasn't just to capture the hijinks, but to sit in the morning after, the hangover where you wonder if maybe it's time to change.

Making this film together as longtime friends ourselves, we channeled our own histories into the DNA of these characters. That Friend is loud and chaotic on the surface, but at its core is a love letter to complicated friendships, the kind that shape us, frustrate us, and, in the end, teach us who we really

Filmmakers

Alex Wall

WRITER / DIRECTOR

That Friend is the debut feature from Alex Wall (writer/director). His prior collaborations with Will Sterling have placed and been featured in The Academy Nicholl Fellowships in Screenwriting, Newport Beach Film Festival, Paris International Film Festival, Austin Film Festival, Blue Cat Screenwriting and more. Wall edits and produces unscripted television for HBO, MAX, NBC, A&E and Netflix.

Will Sterling

WRITER / DIRECTOR

“That Friend” is the second feature from writer, director, actor, producer Will Sterling, whose work blends sharp comedy with strong emotional undercurrents and genre driven storytelling. His meta-comedy “A Cell Phone Movie” was nominated for Best Debut Feature at the Raindance Film Festival in 2025, and his debut novel “Fame by Misadventure” won Best Fiction in the 2024 National Indie Excellence Awards.

Ryan Tillotson

PRODUCER

Ryan Tillotson is the founder and CEO of acclaimed podcast house Straw Hut Media that partners with Hulu, Netflix, Universal, Rotten Tomatoes, among several other companies.

Michael Amico

DIRECTOR OF PHOTOGRAPHY

Michael Amico is a Prague-based photographer and cinematographer. With a background in documentary, he focuses on people, observing how individuals behave within different environments and often looking for moments of contrast within a scene. He approaches cinematography with a photographer’s mindset—using framing, blocking, and natural light to support performance and reveal character. That Friend is his debut narrative feature film.

Josh Land

EDITOR

Josh Land is an editor & assistant editor whose work spans studio films, independent features, documentaries, and television. His recent credits include Only, Courage Rising, Transformers: Rise of the Beasts, and Sandiwara, the upcoming short film from Sean Baker.

Dillon Baldassero

COMPOSER

Dillon Baldassero is a Los Angeles-based composer, producer, and artist from Toronto. His recent work includes the SXSW-premiering Deepfaking Sam Altman, The Fallers (Georgina Campbell), and music supervision on A24’s The Undertone. He scored the Amazon/Hulu series Davey & Jonesie’s Locker, earning a Canadian Screen Award nomination, and has contributed music to the upcoming feature Ballistic (Lena Headey). He is currently scoring Hartbeat’s Livestream from Hell, starring Kevin Hart and Druski.

Kristi Lugo

CASTING DIRECTOR

Kristi Lugo is a Los Angeles-based casting director whose recent credits include I Play Rocky, directed by Academy Award-winner Peter Farrelly, and DC’s Blue Beetle. She consults for Fangoria Studios and is currently casting The Big Five produced by Coco Francini and Allison Friedman.
